LIGHT PRIMARY VOTE

PHILADELPHIA, April 25.—(UP)—Light voting in the early hours today marked Pennsylvania's most lull presidential election year primary since the turn of the century.

Early indications were that fewer than the predicted one-third of the state's 4,000,000 registered voters would cast their votes.

The 8,195 polling places were opened for a 13-hour voting day, ending at 8:00 o'clock tonight.

MIDWEST FLOODS DRIVE THOUSANDS FROM HOMES

FLOOD WATERS have caused several deaths and driven thousands from their homes in midwestern states. Kansas, Missouri, Arkansas and Illinois were among the states ravaged by the flood waters of the rain-swollen rivers. Wichita, Kan., where this picture was taken, was virtually isolated by the overflow from the Arkansas river, fed by many swollen tributaries. (International)

Sedition Jury Quest Continues

WASHINGTON, April 25.—(UP)—The quest for a jury continued today as the war's biggest sedition trial went into its sixth day with a defense attorney asking President Roosevelt to call the whole thing off to prevent "a wave of hostility and bias toward the Jewish race."

Presiding Judge Edward C. Elcher dismissed 45 of the 86 prospective jurors in the second panel yesterday when they admitted that they had already formed opinions on the guilt or innocence of the 28 men and two women accused of conspiracy with the Nazis.

Not a single juror was chosen during the first five days of the trial. And if a full jury is not selected by next Monday, when the April list of available jurors expires, the prosecution and defense must start all over again from a completely new panel.

The plea for presidential intervention in the trial was made by James Laughlin, attorney for defendants Edward James Smythe and Robert Noble, who said its continuance would "see class arrayed against class and race against race."

Otherwise, Laughlin said in a letter to the President, the trial will last until Nov. 8 when it would be discontinued "due to the fact that the people of the United States will vote a change in government on Nov. 7."

The attorney said Mr. Roosevelt would be doing a "very fine thing" if he stopped the proceedings so that the defense would not be compelled to "reveal the workings of the pernicious influences masterminding and directing this prosecution... as distasteful as that duty will be."

Suspect Admits Robbing Bank

EAST CHICAGO, Ind., April 25.—(UP)—Police said today that Miss Helen Waltermath, cashier of the Griffith Federal Savings and Loan Association, identified Walter Dembrowski, 29, as the bandit who held up the association last Friday and escaped with $3,288 in currency.

The officers said that they had obtained a confession from the prisoner. They also said they were holding Stanley Levandusky, 32, as the driver of the car in which Dembrowski escaped after the bold daylight robbery. They reported that Levandusky had served sentences for armed robbery.

Arrests of the two men followed the discovery of a blue coupe owned by Levandusky which fitted a description of a car seen parked in an alley near the association by a passerby. Miss Waltermath said she saw only the bandit, who rifled the cash drawer and safe and then forced her into a wash room.

FUNERAL HELD

Funeral services for Albert P. Burnside were held Tuesday afternoon from the McCurry Funeral Home. Burial was in the Forest Hill cemetery.

Strike Ends As Workers Report

CHICAGO, April 25.—(UP)—The 13-day-old strike at Montgomery Ward and Co., ended today when workers reported for the 8 a. m. shift in compliance with President Roosevelt's directive ordering the company and the workers to end the dispute by noon.

Picketing of the Ward plant was halted last night and the strikers reported for work at 11 p. m., but the company ordered them to return at 8 a. m. because their shift had been abandoned temporarily.

Leonard Levy, international executive vice president of the United Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Employees (CIO), explained that the company had no immediate work for the 11 o'clock shift.

The union voted yesterday to return to work, but the company was silent on the presidential directive ordering cessation of the strike. The board of directors was in session yesterday but Sewell I. Avery, chairman, made no statement following the meeting.

In telegrams to the union and company Sunday, Mr. Roosevelt ordered the strikers to return to work and the company to comply with a War Labor Board directive of Jan. 13 directing the company to extend its present contract with the union pending negotiations for a new pact.

Unless both sides complied by noon today, Mr. Roosevelt said he would take such action "as the interests of the nation require," presumably governmental seizure of the firm.

Levy said the union would demand back pay for the time lost during the strike, and explained that it was taking the position that the company had provoked the walkout by unfair labor practices. The strikers also have applied for unemployment compensation from the state, he said.

MINNEAPOLIS, April 25.—(UP)—Triplets born to Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Thorson, 28, Sandstone, Minn., have not been named officially by their parents but among hospital attendants the three babies, all boys, are known as "Dewey, Stassen and Willie."

DENVER, April 25.—(UP)—When Pvt. Mon Ken Poy, a Chinese soldier appeared before U. S. District Judge J. Foster Symes for naturalization, he asked for permission to change his name, now that he was really American. Permission granted, he changed it to Poy Ken Mon.

Overseas Travel Banned By Britain

LONDON, April 25.—(UP)—Virtually all travel overseas from Britain was prohibited today under what the London Daily Express flatly called "invasion eve regulations."

The home office announced late last night that only those engaged on business of "urgent national importance which cannot be postponed" would be permitted to leave Britain until further notice.

The ministry attributed its action merely to "military considerations," but the travel ban obviously was another step to prevent invasion secrets from leaking to the axis in the critical days or weeks before allied armies land in western Europe.

Nazi-controlled radios in Europe continued to speculate the invasion would come sometime this week and Berlin radio was heard broadcasting that "every member of the German western army knows that the big test lies ahead."

"The German soldier is ready to accept the challenge for decisive battle," Berlin said.

Stockholm dispatches disclosed that the Germans also have acted to safeguard their preparations to counter an invasion. All passenger traffic between Sweden and Denmark, both by ferries and plane, was halted suddenly yesterday, presumably by the Germans, and Copenhagen notified the Swedish telephone company that no more telephone calls for Denmark would be accepted until further notice.

Steel Industry Case Before WLB

WASHINGTON, April 25.—(UP)—The steel industry opened its attack on the United Steel Workers (CIO) wage campaign today as a "big steel" spokesman charged that approval of its demands would force the public "to foot the bill" through higher steel prices and higher taxes.

A "little steel" spokesman described the union campaign as a "political crusade" threatening small companies with destruction.

The industry leaders opened their case before the War Labor Board steel panel after a three-week recess which followed presentation of the union case. The USW has demanded revision of the little steel wage stabilization formula to allow a general wage increase of 17 cents an hour.

In a statement prepared for presentation to the panel, Benjamin Fairless, president of the huge United States Steel Corporation, said he could not believe it was "in the best interests of the steel workers now to insist upon wage increases which seem to have no sound economic justification, especially considering that their present wage are the highest in history and are considerably higher than the average weekly earnings of workers in all manufacturing industries."

"I cannot believe that our country's great effort to win this most important of all wars will be advanced by a small clerical staff."

15 NAZI BOATS, 36 PLANES SHOT DOWN BY SOVIETS

MASSSED SQUADRONS OF RED PLANES TAKE OVER AT SEVASTOPOL

MOSCOW, April 25 (UP)—Russian siege armies and assault planes were reported pouring torrents of shells and bombs into Sevastopol today in apparent preparation for the showdown battle of the Black Sea naval base.

MOSCOW, April 25. (UP)—Massed squadrons of Red Air Force and fleet air arm planes took over the siege of Sevastopol today, sinking 15 enemy vessels and destroying 36 planes in 24 hours, as ground forces re-grouped for the final assault on the big naval base.

(Soviet reports failed to support German claims that the Red Army had launched its decisive attack on Sevastopol.)

Nine of the vessels sent to the bottom were transports loaded to capacity with German troops attempting to escape across the blockaded Black Sea to Rumania. Three patrol boats, two landing barges and a torpedo boat also were sunk and a number of additional craft were damaged severely.

The attacks brought to 65 the number of enemy ships sunk or damaged severely off the southern Crimea in the past two weeks, including 17 troop transports.

Twenty-two German planes were shot down in aerial combat and 14, including five tri-motored Junkers 52 transports used to evacuate troops by air, were destroyed on the ground in a raid on one of few airfields remaining in German hands in the Crimea.

The Soviet high command, in its midnight communique, reported for the third consecutive day that there were "no essential changes" along the vast front.

A supplement, however, told of the repulse of continued German counter-attacks northeast and southeast of the railway junction of Lwow in old Poland.

Some 80 miles northeast of Lwow, the Germans re-captured two villages, but were routed in turn by a Soviet counter-blow in which more than 400 enemy troops were killed.

A German infantry battalion crossed a water defense line southeast of Stanislawow on the southern approaches to Lwow under cover of darkness. Soon after dawn, the Russians attacked and killed more than 200 of the enemy. The enemy remnants were thrown into the river, where many drowned.

More than 7,100 Germans have been killed in the Stanislawow sector in the past week.

America Holds Diplomatic Card

WASHINGTON, April 25 (UP)—Finland's rejection of Soviet Russia's peace terms apparently left the United States today holding the remaining diplomatic card in the Russo-Finnish game—severance of diplomatic relations with Finland.

Russia, of course, still holds high military cards.

When the United States will play its hand—and whether it would do any good if she did—was uncertain. There was no confirmation at the state department of foreign press reports that the United States was contemplating such action.

Some diplomats believed that because of the already deteriorated relations between the United States and Finland, a formal break would have virtually no effect on the Finnish government. Others, admitting such to be the case, nevertheless thought there was a chance the United States might make the gesture of breaking relations, hoping it would help to change Finland's decision.

The groundwork for a break by the United States has already been laid by Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

In February he warned Finland to get out of the war or suffer the consequences, and on March 14 he repeated the warning. The "consequences" so far as the United States is concerned could be severance of relations, although the diplomatic establishment of Finland here has been on an informally restricted basis for some time, and the American legation in Helsinki was reduced a year ago to a single diplomatic official and a small clerical staff.

FIGHTER PLANES AID YANK TROOPS IN NEW GUINEA

AMERICAN FLEETS USING NEWLY CAPTURED AIRFIELD AT TADJI

ADVANCED ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, April 25 (UP)—Fighter planes, flying from a newly-captured airstrip at Tadj, have joined American jungle troops expanding their three beachheads in northern New Guinea, it was announced today.

Disclosure that fighter planes as well as transports were using a Tadj airstrip, four miles from Aitape, came as the troops moved to within striking distance of the village and closed in on the three airfields at Hollandia.

Use of the new field gave the ground forces their first effective support from fighter craft. Previous air bases on New Guinea were below the Allied lines south of Madang and at least 300 miles from the new beachheads.

The strip was one of the three Tadj airfields seized by U. S. troops, soon after the landing Saturday. The veteran jungle fighters reached the approaches to Aitape village after crossing the mouth of the Raihu river.

Jungle troops expanded their newly won beachheads in northern New Guinea today, driving to within striking distance of Aitape and gradually closing the encircling movement around the three airfields at Hollandia.

The veteran fighters advancing toward Aitape crossed the mouth of the Raihu river and reached the approaches of the village, four miles east of the three Tadj airstrips, which they seized several hours after the surprise landing Saturday.

Front dispatches placed the forward lines at only two miles from the village Sunday night. In the drive the troops captured Tumbelo, Sele and all islands offshore near Aitape. While a communique from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters did not mention the presence of any Japanese troops in the area, it was reported that the enemy garrison at Aitape had fled the village.

Front dispatches continued to report that thousands of Japanese were pushing northward in a do-or-die thrust from the by-passed Wewak area, 85 miles south of Aitape, in the Hollandia area, 125 miles above Aitape, two forces were driving from the east and west on Hollandia's three airfields on a valley behind the high Cyclops mountain range.

Troops which landed at Tanahmeh were reported five miles from the main airfield, while forces from Humboldt Bay, 20 miles to the east, rapidly were moving up a motor road connecting the two bays, with the Hollandia, Cyclops and Sentani airfields in between.

The communique said the Humboldt Bay troops seized Hollandia township, Pim Village and Leimok hill to the south and captured huge quantities of supplies and equipment in the advance toward the airfields.

Opposition was described by an Allied spokesman as slight at all points in the Hollandia sector with "only a very minor number" of Japanese killed.

A possible explanation for the lack of enemy opposition in the area was contained in a communique by Adm. Chester W. Nimitz which disclosed that swarms of carrier-based planes and guns of the U. S. Pacific fleet swept 300 miles of the northern New Guinea coast Thursday and Friday in a prelude to the invasion, and then moved in to cover the landings of MacArthur's troops.

The planes from Nimitz's armada struck three key airfields at Hollandia, Wakde Island and Sawar, all in Dutch New Guinea, destroying 101 enemy planes and damaging 17 others in the air and on the ground, while naval forces sank two small cargo ships and numerous barges and

EUROPE ROCKS FROM TONS OF ALLIED BOMBS

ROUND-THE-CLOCK PRE-INVASION AIR OFFENSIVE GIVES AXIS NO REST

LONDON, April 25.—(UP)—Five hundred American heavy bombers smashed at three big German airbases in northeast France today to set the pace for the ninth straight day of preinvasion bombing after strong British forces had hit the German rail hub of Karlsruhe, Munich and Dusseldorf by night.

Heavily escorted Flying Fortresses and Liberators attacked Nancy, Metz and Dijon. The Berlin radio reported American bombers over southwest Germany for the second straight day. Swiss dispatches said three Liberators were forced down in Switzerland by Swiss fighters.

The Eighth Air Force sent its Fortresses and Liberators 250 miles behind the invasion coast to strike new blows at the main German air force bases in northeastern France.

Up to 750 Thunderbolts, Lightnings and Mustangs of the Eighth and Ninth Air Forces and RAF Mustangs of the Second Tactical Air Force shepherded the big bombers.

LONDON, April 25.—(UP)—RAF bombers, probably 1,000 or more hit the German communications hubs of Munich and Karlsruhe last night, and a few hours after daylight raiders roared out from Britain to carry the non-stop pre-invasion bombardment of Western Europe into its ninth day.

Both bombers and fighters were among the formations that streamed across the straits of Dover in brilliant sunshine today, beginning at dawn. American Thunderbolts joined in the processions toward the French invasion coast.

British bombers, ranging from four-engined Lancasters and Halifaxes to twin-engined Mosquitoes, swarmed over Germany last night in what was described officially as "very great strength" to continue the methodical devastation of junctions through which Germany must move supplies and reinforcements to counter an Allied invasion.

Watchers reported that at least three huge Armadas crossed the east and southeast coasts during darkness. Radio Munich was heard broadcasting at 2 a. m. (8 p. m. Monday EDT) that numerous planes were over the city and were being attacked by night fighters.

Munich, Germany's fourth largest city and birthplace of the Nazi party, controls the principal railway routes from Germany to Italy and also serves as a bottleneck on the supply line from Austria and southern Germany to France.

Karlsruhe lies 150 miles northwest of Munich only a few miles from the eastern tip of France and due east of Paris. It probably had become one of the principal junctions serving the French invasion coasts since attacks last week smashed Cologne, Mannheim, Hamm and Dusseldorf.

Upwards of 2,000 American Flying Fortresses, Liberators and escorting fighters further cut into the Luftwaffe's warning power yesterday with attacks on aircraft factories at Friedrichshafen in southwestern Germany and airfields in the Munich area.

A total of 103 German planes was shot down in aerial combat, 66 of them by fighters and the remainder by the big bombers, and an additional "large number" was destroyed on the ground, an American communique revealed. Thirty-eight bombers and 17 fighters were lost, but 12 were known to have landed safely in Switzerland.

Bombing results were described as "generally satisfactory." Two bomber divisions met only light opposition, but a third told of "determined and continuous attacks by numbers of German fighters."

The Home Economics Club leaders of the county met in the basement of the Goben Memorial church for their second training meeting of the year. "Making Wash Dresses with a Professional Look," was presented by Miss Frieda C. Stall, clothing specialist.

Many small details give the professional look instead of one or two large ones. It is better to select a size pattern that fits through the shoulders and adjust it to fit bust and hips. Pinning the pattern together and adjusting it to fit is really the first fitting of the garment.

It is important today to shrink all material before making, for sanitizing machinery is one of the war casualties.

Cholera Origin Still A Mystery

Suddenly, from an unknown origin, an epidemic strikes and hog cholera wipes out whole hog populations in entire communities. Like infantile paralysis in the human being and other virus diseases, no one knows where it comes from or where it goes, warns Dr. C. R. Donham, head of the veterinary department at Purdue University.

Vaccination is the hog farmer's most effective insurance against this threat. The disease is highly contagious and spreads from herd to herd. Sanitation is necessary, but alone will not prevent an attack of cholera.

It is generally recommended that pigs be vaccinated at from six to 12 weeks of age. However if hog cholera is prevented in the herd, it may be necessary to vaccinate at an earlier age. In that event, the pigs should be revaccinated when they are two or three months old.

Once the pigs have become sick with cholera or some other disease, it is too late to hope for best results from vaccination. Pigs usually will not stand the reaction of hog cholera virus while they are sick.

Donham warns that the greatest single cause of loss from failure of vaccination to be effective is the use of too little anti-serum. The dose given on the bottle often is insufficient. To be on the safe side, it is recommended that the farmer insist upon his veterinarian using one or one-half or two times that dose. A "cheap" vaccination job may prove to be the most expensive.

In order to be effective, the virus must be properly stored, protected from the heat, and not allowed to become old. When poor virus is used, the pigs actually have been vaccinated with anti-serum alone and will be immune for only two or three weeks. Later, they again are susceptible to cholera. Such hogs frequently become sick and die from a so-called "virus break."

Better Wheat Follows Soybeans

For better wheat following soybeans, plant the beans in rows, use adapted varieties, and harvest them early is the advice of Purdue University agronomists to Indiana farmers. It is suggested also that the seed bed be worked well before planting, and the weeds controlled.

Growing wheat following soybeans is a handy and profitable practice when well carried out, say the agronomists. The wheat seed bed can be fitted with little work. Wheat growing costs are reduced to a minimum.

Fertilizer pays well on wheat and especially following soybeans. The use of 300 to 400 pounds of 0-14-7 or 3-12-12 commercial fertilizer on the wheat is recommended. Large amounts may be used with the seed wheat without injury to it. The result usually is a profitable increase in wheat yields, as well as improved clover and grass seedings.

When sowing wheat late and under unfavorable circumstances, it is suggested that one to two pecks more of seed per acre be planted to make up for the lack of stooling. Frequently poor stooling indicates a shortage of phosphorus.

The best insurance against loss of clover stands in wheat following soybeans, say the agronomists, is to correct soil acidity and fertilize well with the minerals, phosphate and potash.

Copies of Purdue Leaflet 255, "How to Grow Better Wheat Following Soybeans," are available, free of charge, at any Indiana county agricultural extension office.

TREE PROGRAM GETS UNDER WAY IN STATE

Approximately 4,000,000 trees are being planted in the state this spring for reforestation, windbreak and erosion control purposes, T. E. Shaw, acting state forester, has announced.

More than half of these trees are being supplied by the state nurseries under the supervision of the Department of Conservation. Due to labor shortage and the heavy rains and floods of last spring, the nurseries were not able to produce as many trees as in 1943, and therefore it became necessary to import planting stock. The Illinois Conservation Department is supplying 831,000 trees and the U. S. Forest Service is providing 260,000 trees. Approximately 200,000 trees are coming from private nurseries, and the Soil Conservation Service is supplying 300,000 from nurseries which they operate outside the state.

In addition to these plantings, nut bearing trees are being planted by using the nuts rather than the seedlings.

About one-half of the trees are being planted by coal companies on strip mine areas in the southwestern part of the state. Approximately 115,000 are being planted on the state-owned properties, and the remainder of the trees are going to citizens for planting on private lands.

Lumber producers and industries using wood products are becoming increasingly interested in reforestation and many companies are entering large tracts to insure a timber supply for the future.

Stock Grazing Affects Timber

Indiscriminate cutting, livestock grazing and fire have lowered the quality of timber in Indiana farmwoods, says Daniel Denton, forestryman at Purdue University. Liberal use to obtain forest products needed on the farm and to supply wood-using industries with raw materials also have caused many farmwoods to become understocked, both in quantity of timber and in the proportion of the most desirable species.

The volume of timber in the farmwoods ranges from 6,000 to 20,000 board feet per acre. Actual timber production in Indiana farmwoods will vary from 100 to 350 board feet per acre per year. In terms of present stumpage prices, this means an annual net production of $5 to $20 per acre. The fact that these prices are about the same as peacetime prices indicates a steady financial return from a long-time, stabilized program of good woodland management.

A better farmwoods management, suggests Denton, would exclude grazing of domestic livestock, favor the better growing species, and seek a better distribution of trees of various sizes. Under such a plan, the annual growth in hardwood stands should average in excess of 200 board feet per acre.

A Bit Of Advice

A course of Official Methods of Seed Testing will be offered for the tenth time at Purdue University, June 26 to July 15. The course features germination and purity testing according to the rules adopted by the Association of Official Seed Analysts. A parallel course in the identification and control of noxious weeds includes lectures, laboratory work and field trips which permit first-hand study of noxious and troublesome weeds. For further information, write to the Department of Agricultural Chemistry, Purdue University, Lafayette.

Purdue Extension Bulletin 208 (second reprint), "Controlling Fire Blight by Canker Treatment and Spraying," contains complete instructions on that subject. Large annual losses result from fire blight infection in apples and pears in Indiana orchards. Copies of this bulletin may be obtained, free of charge, at any Indiana county agricultural extension office.

The neighborhood leader organization in Brown county is given a large part of the credit for exceeding the county Red Cross quota of $2,200 by approximately 20 per cent, in the recent drive. H. F. Horton, county chairman of the drive says, in a report received by Purdue officials "The collection of this sum would have been impossible without the help of the neighborhood leader organization."

GAME HERE SATURDAY

Coach Lloyd Messersmith's Tiger diamond squad will endeavor to score its first victory of the season here Saturday when DePauw meets Miami University on Blackstock Field.

Defeated 6 to 2 by Bunker Hill naval air station in their opener last Friday, the Tigers will probably rely on the pitching of Wayne Montgomery in their second try for victory.

Montgomery did not start the opener because of a sore arm but saw action during the last three innings and held Bunker Hill to one run and two hits.

Last year Montgomery as number one man on the DePauw hurling staff won five victories against two losses.

COST OF ELECTRICITY

● The ostrich and the duck help to remind you that almost every household necessity is way up in cost... the big exception is electricity... it's still sold at low pre-war prices.

In fact electricity is so low... that the average American family now gets about twice as much electricity for its money as it did 15 years ago!

It's a real achievement to keep electric service cheap in spite of rising costs and taxes... and to keep it plentiful in the face of war's tremendous demands for power. The credit goes largely to the planning and foresight of sound business management plus the skill and willingness of our employees who are constantly on the job striving to achieve economies in operation and improvements in service.
